Consider a zero-indexed array (of even length) consisting of integers. Two people, Player A and Player B play a game with the following rules:

* Player A removes the minimum element from the array and Player B does the same after that.

* Player B adds their removed element to a separate array and Player A does the same after that.

Return that separate array.